NL_ Het is via het nummer 173 van het tijdschrift Quaderns (april-mei-juni 1987) dat ik voor het eerst in contact kom met het werk van de tweede generatie Zwitserse architecten. Het interessante aan deze publicatie is dat niet louter de projecten van Diener & Diener, Marcel Meili en Marques & Zurkirchen is gepubliceerd maar onderbouwd is door teksten over 'Rigour' van Milan Kundera en Livio Vacchini en door een kort overzicht over het oeuvre van de ingenieur Hans Hilfiker.

Een ander Quaderns-nummer in 1988 plaatst de projecten van Herzog & de Meuron en Diener & Diener in een bredere context temidden van het pedagogisch programma van Hans Kollhoff via zijn tekst 'Architecture versus urban Design' en het referentieel vertoog 'Tears for Architecture' van Stanislaus von Moos.

Aldus groeit vanaf dat moment stilaan niet enkel een passie voor het steeds bekijken en bestuderen van de nieuwe projecten maar ook de intentie naar een reflectie van de Zwitserse identiteit, de voortdurende moderniteit, de zin en fierheid voor ambacht, de juistheid van het detail. Met de jaren ontwikkelt zich ook de zin voor het vastleggen van fragmenten, gaande van louter objectmatig en visueel frappant tot doorzocht en vastgeworteld.

Deze publicatie is aldus een gereduceerd verslag waaraan dertig studiereizen naar Zwitserland, meer specifiek Basel, aan de basis liggen, samen met gesprekken met Zwitserse architecten zoals Roger Diener, Mike Guyer en Marcel Meili, de ingenieur Jürg Conzett, de designers Hannes Wettstein en Alfredo Häberli, de theoreticus Martino Stierli, naast uitnodigingen voor lezingen, aanwezigheden op workshops en jury's en eigen teksten die eveneens als de foto's een weerslag vormen van die zoektocht.

E_ The issue 173 of the review Quaderns (April-May-June 1987) brought me in first contact with the work of the second generation Swiss architects. Interesting in this publication is not only the fact that the projects by Diener & Diener, Marcel Meili and Marques & Zurkirchen are shown but that it is stated with texts on 'Rigour' by Milan Kundera and Livio Vacchini and an overview on the work of the engineer Hans Hilfiker.

An other Quaderns-issue in 1988 was mentioning the projects by Herzog & de Meuron and Diener & Diener in a much wider context midst a text 'Architecture versus urban design', the pedagogic program of Hans Kollhoff at the ETH Zürich and 'Tears for Architecture', a referential text by Stanislaus von Moos.

From this moment on not only the passion for the continuous looking and visiting of the new projects is growing but also the intention towards a reflection on the Swiss identity, the never ending modernity, the sense and pride for craftsmanship, the preciseness for the detail. With the years the desire for registration of fragments, from object and visually prominent to studied and rooted, grows even more.

This publication is a reduced report which has 30 study trips to Switzerland and more specific Basel as its base, together with conversations with the architects Roger Diener, Mike Guyer and Marcel Meili, the engineer Jürg Conzett, the designers Hannes Wettstein and Alfredo Häberli, the theorist Martino Stierli, besides invitations for lectures, presences on juries and workshops and proper texts which, just as the photographs, report on this research.
